

AWAYS

PREMIUM PERSONAL STYLE REPORT

Hard Straight

Sharp lines, urban minimalism — clean and uncompromising. Your personalized style guide.

HARD STRAIGHT

Lines & structure in sharp harmony

22-PAGE STYLE GUIDE

FOR YOU

What's inside

A complete style playbook in 6 chapters. You don't have to read it cover-to-cover. Pick the chapter you need today, and come back for the rest as you go.

01	Understanding your body type Your 3 Hard Straight signatures · diagnostic score breakdown	P. 04
02	Silhouette & fit secrets Golden formula · what flatters · what to avoid	P. 06
03	The right fabrics & colors 7 fabrics for you · pattern guide · base color palette	P. 08
04	5 everyday outfit formulas Office · meeting · business casual · presentation · weekend	P. 10
05	Essential shopping checklist 12 must-have items · brand recommendations · price tiers	P. 13
06	Year-round styling + Q&A Seasonal essentials · clearing up common myths	P. 15

01

CHAPTER ONE

Understanding your body

Dressing well starts with knowing your body — not what's on trend.

Before asking what suits you, you need to understand how your frame is actually shaped. This chapter unpacks the three core characteristics of the Hard Straight body type in detail.

CHAPTER 01 · BODY UNDERSTANDING

You are Hard Straight

Hard Straight is the body type built for minimalism and precision. Your frame reads vertical and architectural — clean lines, defined bone structure, no soft-curve interruptions — and your silhouette amplifies whatever clean cut you put on it. The result is a presence that reads urban, sharp, uncompromising. Your job isn't to soften the line or fake curves; it's to lean into the architectural quality your body already has.

"Some bodies were built for clean cuts. The moment you stop trying to add curves, your sharpest silhouette emerges."

— YOUR STYLE DIAGNOSIS

01 The 3 signatures of your body type

01 A vertical, architectural frame

Your shoulders and hips line up roughly evenly, and your torso runs as a clean continuous line — no dramatic waist-to-hip curve. This is exactly what makes sharp tailoring, column dresses, and minimalist cuts look intentional and powerful on you. Trying to wrap or belt a dramatic waistline creates a styling mismatch.

02 Defined bone structure

Your wrist, collarbone, and shoulder edges read clearly. Your overall texture is frame-first rather than flesh-first. This is what gives you a sharp, modern presence rather than a soft one. Drapey, fluid fabrics tend to collapse against your structure; firm, clean-lined fabrics meet it directly.

03 Squared, defined shoulders

Your shoulders sit broad and squared, contributing to your overall vertical-and-architectural impression. Tailored blazers, structured coats, and clean V-necks bring out the geometry your frame is already showing. Soft puff sleeves and rounded romantic details tend to fight your line rather than work with it.

Your diagnostic score

DIRECTION

Straight

TEXTURE

Hard

Your result is the synthesis of 15 questions analyzed together. Each answer carries a weighted score across body direction (Straight / Wave / Natural) and texture (Hard / Soft). Your final type is the highest-scoring match.

HARD STRAIGHT IN NUMBERS

Hard Straight is one of the less common body types globally — which means most generic styling advice misses your mark. Curve-emphasizing trends actively work against you; soft-natural advice softens you too much. Your styling sweet spot is its own thing — sharp, minimal, urban — and it's worth getting right.

02 Why this result

Your responses showed strong Straight direction for three reasons. First, you reported a small or absent waist-to-hip difference. Second, belts and wraps don't transform your silhouette. Third, sharp tailoring and clean cuts tend to look intentional on you. These three signals are the clearest indicators of a Straight body type.

Your Hard texture result came from answers about wrist firmness, visible bone structure, and overall body firmness — your body reads as frame first, flesh second. Combined with the Straight direction, this gives you the Hard Straight classification.

03 How you differ from other types

Aspect	Hard Straight (you)	Soft Straight	Hard Wave
Core feature	Linear + firm structure	Linear + soft volume	Curves + firm structure
Best fits	Sharp tailoring, clean lines	Straight, slightly boxy, polished	Fitted + structured
What to avoid	Curve-emphasizing cuts, drapey fabrics	Tight, body-hugging fits	Drapey, fluid fabrics
Style	Minimal	Polished	Sharp

Hard Straight is often described as the body type built for minimalism — the silhouettes that look 'too plain' on others read intentional and modern on you. The key isn't to add softness or curves; it's to let the clean line lead. The next chapter shows you the silhouettes that let your sharpness do the work.

02

CHAPTER TWO

The golden ratio of fit

Dressing well, in the end, is about understanding fit. The same garment can read completely differently depending on how it sits on you. This chapter shows you which silhouettes lock into a Hard Straight frame — and which ones you should walk past in the store.

CHAPTER 02 · SILHOUETTE & FIT

The secret to a flattering silhouette

01 Your golden formula

"Sharp line + clean cut + minimal detail."

— YOUR FIT FORMULA

The single most flattering formula for Hard Straight is sharp top + sharp bottom + a continuous clean line. You're not nipping waists or adding ruffles — you're letting precision tailoring carry the entire silhouette. This is the silhouette behind minimalist designers like The Row, Jil Sander, and Helmut Lang — because it works on bodies built for clean cuts.

YES

Sharp single-breasted blazer + tailored straight trouser

YES

Column dress in firm fabric — minimal detail, sharp line

WHY THIS WORKS

When the line stays sharp from shoulder to hem with no interrupting details, your structure reads as intentional architecture. The eye registers precision, not absence of curves. This is why minimalist designer pieces look powerful on Hard Straight bodies in a way they never quite do on softer or curvier frames.

02 Fits that flatter you

These silhouettes work with your frame, not against it. When in doubt at the store, default to one of these.

SHARP SINGLE-BREASTED BLAZER

Defined shoulder, clean line, your power piece

COLUMN DRESS IN FIRM FABRIC

Continuous architectural line

TAILORED STRAIGHT TROUSER

Sharpest line for your vertical proportion

SLIM, KNEE-LENGTH COAT

Extends the column silhouette

03 Fits to avoid

These fits flatten or fight your structure. Most styling regrets come from one of these.

WRAP DRESS WITH HARD TIE

Forces a curve you don't have

PEPLUM TOP

Adds volume that fights your line

SOFT DRAPEY MAXI

Collapses against your structure

FULL A-LINE SKIRT

Disrupts the clean vertical proportion

03

CHAPTER THREE

Fabrics & colors made for you

The same design in a different fabric can fit completely differently. Hard Straight bodies look best in firm, clean-lined fabrics with weight.
Drapey, fluid fabrics fight your sharp frame and make pieces look like they're slipping rather than sitting.

CHAPTER 03 · FABRIC & COLOR

The right fabrics

Hard Straight looks most at home in fabrics that hold a sharp line and have weight. Soft silks and slinky jerseys melt where your body wants firmness. Architectural fabrics meet you exactly where you live.

WOOL GABARDINE

The minimalist suiting fabric — sharp, weighted, clean.

HEAVY COTTON POPLIN

Architectural shirting that holds its line.

MID-WEIGHT CREPE

Has body, doesn't drape — ideal for column dresses.

RIGID DENIM

Raw or rigid denim that holds sharp silhouettes.

LEATHER

Substantial leather for jackets and statement pieces.

HEAVY SILK SATIN

Weighted silk satin for evening, never thin charmeuse.

FABRICS TO SKIP

Soft silk charmeuse, fluid rayon, slinky jersey, and lightweight chiffon tend to collapse against your frame rather than meet it. They photograph beautifully on softer bodies and underwhelmingly on yours. If a fabric pours through your hand like water, it'll do the same on your body.

Your color palette

Sharp, deep tones and high-contrast neutrals complement your structure. Your natural palette skews toward minimal and architectural rather than soft or busy.

True Black

#1A1714

Pure White

#F8F6F1

Charcoal

#3A3A3A

Ink Navy

#1F2D4A

Stone Grey

#8A8378

Oxblood

#5A1A20

02 How to use these colors

Build outfits around true black, pure white, and charcoal as your everyday base. They match your minimalism and read commanding rather than busy.

Use ink navy and oxblood for grown-up depth — they bring richness without softening your line, and pair beautifully with your base colors.

Soft pastels like dusty pink and pale blue can fight your sharper features. If you love them, use them in single-piece blocks (a whole pastel coat, a whole pastel dress) — never as small soft accents on a sharp outfit. The contrast is what works.

COLORS THAT FIGHT YOUR SHARPNESS

Muted pastels in combination, dusty earth tones layered together, and busy small-scale prints can wash out your defined features and fight your minimal line. If you wear print, choose architectural ones — bold stripes, large geometric, monochromatic check.

04

CHAPTER FOUR

5 outfit formulas

Theory is one thing — knowing what to wear on a Tuesday morning is another. Five complete formulas, ready to wear, designed specifically for Hard Straight bodies. Steal them, mix them, build from them.

CHAPTER 04 · OUTFIT FORMULAS

5 outfit formulas

MEETINGS · FORMAL MOMENTS

FORMULA 01

The minimal power look

"When you need to walk in and own the room without trying"

Sharp blazer + straight trouser + pointed pump

Why this works: A precisely tailored single-breasted blazer with a straight-leg trouser is your professional power piece. Both pieces in matching wool gabardine creates a sharp suit silhouette; mismatched (different colors) reads more modern. Pointed pumps finish the look with intention.

💡 PRO TIP

The blazer should have a defined shoulder and a clean line through the body — no waist nipping, no peplum. If your blazer is too loose, take it to a tailor; if it's too fitted at the waist, find a different cut. The blazer should fall as a clean rectangle from your shoulder.

OFFICE · LUNCH DATES

FORMULA 02

Modern minimal workday look

"Sharp and decisive for everyday office days"

Crisp white shirt + tailored trouser + loafer

Why this works: A crisp white poplin shirt tucked sharply into a tailored straight trouser is a daily uniform that always works. The shirt's structure holds its line; the tailored trouser carries it down. A pointed loafer keeps it sharp without the heel commitment.

💡 PRO TIP

Tuck the shirt fully and add a thin leather belt only if needed. Roll the sleeves cleanly to mid-forearm — sharp roll, not casual rumple. The whole look should read like a minimalist editorial photograph.

BUSINESS CASUAL

FORMULA 03

Architectural business casual

"For client meetings on a regular Wednesday"

Long sharp coat + slim base + cropped trouser

Why this works: A long sharp wool coat over a slim turtleneck and cropped tailored trouser creates a striking architectural silhouette. The coat extends the vertical line; the cropped pant + ankle boot exposes a clean break. This is the look minimalist designers style their hero pieces with.

 PRO TIP

Don't button the coat. An open coat creates the long vertical line; a buttoned one cuts the silhouette. Choose a coat in a neutral (charcoal, ink navy, true black) for maximum impact — color competes with the architecture.

PRESENTATIONS · BIG MOMENTS

FORMULA 04

The unforgettable presence

"When you need to be the most precisely styled person in the room"

Column dress + sharp blazer + pointed pump

Why this works: A column dress in mid-weight crepe (deep oxblood or true black) layered under a sharp blazer creates one continuous architectural line. The dress provides the column; the blazer adds the shoulder structure. Pointed pumps in matching tone complete the look.

 PRO TIP

Choose a column dress that hits at the knee or just below. The blazer should hit at the high hip. The whole silhouette should read as one sharp continuous line — if anything looks layered or fussy, simplify.

FRIDAY · CASUAL DAY

FORMULA 05

Friday off-duty look*"Relaxed but unmistakably sharp"Crisp white tee + rigid denim + leather jacket

Why this works: A crisp white tee in heavyweight cotton tucked into rigid raw denim, with a substantial leather jacket on top — this is the silhouette that makes Hard Straights look effortlessly modern. The leather jacket's structure matches your frame; the rigid denim holds the sharp line.

💡 PRO TIP

Choose a leather jacket that hits at the high hip with clean lines — no oversized drape, no soft slouch. Rigid denim, never soft worn-in jeans. The whole look should feel like minimalist Helmut Lang archive — sharp, simple, intentional.

06 Accessories that workNECKLACE

Simple chain or single architectural pendant

BAG

Structured top-handle or minimal tote

SHOES

Pointed pump or sharp loafer

— Necklaces

Minimalist, architectural pieces land best on you. A single fine chain, a sharp geometric pendant, or simple silver studs match your line. Layered chains and busy charm necklaces fight your minimalism. Often the strongest move is no necklace at all — let the cut of the garment carry the look. When you do wear jewelry, one piece, one statement.

— Bags

Bags with clean lines, defined edges, and minimal hardware harmonize with your frame. Structured top-handle bags, minimal totes, and box clutches all work. Slouchy hobos and bags with busy hardware can fight your minimal line. Aim for architectural — think The Row, Jil Sander, Lemaire — that's exactly your speed.

— Shoes

Shoes with sharp lines and minimal detail are your sweet spot — pointed pumps, sharp loafers, clean ankle boots, slim Chelsea boots. Round-toe ballet flats and dainty shoes can read out of step with your sharpness. Heel height should be low to mid (1.5–3 inches) — chunky platforms and very thin stilettos both tend to fight the architecture.

05

CHAPTER FIVE

Essential shopping list

12 pieces that should anchor your wardrobe — plus where to actually buy them. You don't need to replace everything. Use this as a checklist against your current closet and fill the gaps over time, not in one weekend.

CHAPTER 05 · SHOPPING CHECKLIST

Tops & bottoms

These four tops do most of the heavy lifting for any outfit. Get them right and most of your wardrobe falls into place.

01 Tops

ITEM	RECOMMENDED FIT & DETAIL	WHERE TO SHOP
Crisp white poplin shirt Architectural, holds line	Heavy cotton poplin / clean placket / sharp collar / slim through body	The Row COS Theory
Slim turtleneck Layering essential	Merino or cashmere blend / fitted but not tight / clean ribbed neck	Uniqlo Theory The Row
Heavyweight crisp tee Holds shape, never droops	Heavyweight cotton / clean crew / slim but not tight / sharp shoulders	The Row Theory Everlane
Sharp silk shell Heavyweight silk, structured	Silk twill or heavy crepe / V or boat neck / clean line / no drape	The Row Theory Equipment

02 Bottoms

ITEM	RECOMMENDED FIT & DETAIL	WHERE TO SHOP
Tailored straight trouser Wool gabardine, sharp line	Wool gabardine / sits at waist / falls straight / cropped at ankle	The Row Theory Toteme
Column dress Mid-weight crepe, clean cut	Mid-weight crepe or wool blend / falls straight / hits at or below knee	The Row Toteme Theory
Rigid straight-leg jean Raw or near-raw denim	Heavy denim / sits at waist / falls straight / minimal stretch / sharp hem	A.P.C. AGOLDE Frame
Slim midi skirt Pencil cut, sharp	Wool gabardine or crepe / sits at waist / hits below knee / clean line	Theory The Row Toteme

Outerwear & dresses

Outerwear is what you're seen in for half the year. These four pieces do the work for any season.

ITEM	RECOMMENDED FIT & DETAIL	WHERE TO SHOP
Sharp single-breasted blazer Defined shoulder, clean line	Wool gabardine / structured shoulder / 1–2 button / clean line through body	The Row Theory Toteme
Long sharp wool coat Knee or below-knee, minimal	Heavy wool / minimal collar / falls from shoulder / sharp lines	The Row Max Mara Toteme
Sharp leather jacket Substantial, hip-length	Real leather / structured shoulder / hip-length / clean lines / minimal hardware	Acne Studios Saint Laurent Frame
Trench coat (sharp version) Architectural, not soft	Heavy gabardine / knee-length / structured shoulder / clean belt or unbelted	Burberry The Row Toteme

HOW TO PRIORITIZE WHEN BUDGET IS LIMITED

If you're starting from scratch, build in this order: (1) sharp single-breasted blazer, (2) tailored straight trouser, (3) crisp white poplin shirt. These three pieces alone will get you through 80% of your week. Add column dress and slim turtleneck next. Save leather jacket and long wool coat for last — they're amazing but more situational. Don't buy everything at once; let your wardrobe build over a season or two.

06

CHAPTER SIX

Year-round & common questions

Stay consistent through every season, and clear up the most common Hard Straight styling myths in one place. After this chapter, you won't second-guess yourself in front of the mirror anymore.

CHAPTER 06 · SEASONS & FAQ

Year-round style guide

SPRING

KEY ITEMS

Crisp white shirt, sharp trench, tailored trouser

STYLE TIP

Layer a crisp white shirt under an open architectural trench with tailored trousers — the most universally flattering spring formula for your body. Don't tightly belt the trench; let it fall straight.

COLORS

Pure white, charcoal, ink navy, oxblood

SUMMER

KEY ITEMS

Crisp tee, tailored short, column dress

STYLE TIP

Lean into heavyweight cotton even in summer — it photographs and fits better than thin breezy fabrics on your frame. A crisp tee + tailored cropped short + sharp loafer is your hot-day uniform.

COLORS

Pure white, true black, stone grey, ink navy

AUTUMN

KEY ITEMS

Sharp blazer, slim turtleneck, rigid denim

STYLE TIP

Layer a slim turtleneck under a sharp blazer with rigid raw denim — the most universally flattering autumn formula for your body. Sharp ankle boots in clean leather complete it.

COLORS

Charcoal, oxblood, ink navy, true black

WINTER

KEY ITEMS

Long sharp wool coat, cashmere knit, sharp boots

STYLE TIP

A long sharp wool coat is your winter signature. Don't belt it — let it fall straight from the shoulder for the long architectural line. Sharp boots in clean leather, never delicate booties or chunky platforms.

COLORS

True black, charcoal, ink navy, oxblood

TRANSITIONING BETWEEN SEASONS

Between-season transitions are all about layering with precision. Use the 3-layer rule: slim base + sharp middle + long architectural outer. A turtleneck + sharp blazer + long coat is sharper and more flattering than any single bulky piece.

Clearing up common myths

Q Aren't wrap dresses supposed to flatter everyone?

A Not for Hard Straight bodies. Wrap dresses are designed to create a defined waist — and your waist doesn't dramatically curve, so the wrap forces a line that doesn't naturally exist on your frame. Column dresses, sheath dresses, and minimalist tailored pieces will always be more flattering than wrap dresses on your body.

Q Should I avoid all soft fabrics? What about silk?

A Not all soft — but be selective. Heavy silk twill, mid-weight silk crepe, and structured silk with weight work for you. Slippery silk charmeuse, fluid jersey, and lightweight chiffon don't. The test: does the fabric hold its line when you bunch it in your hand? If it springs back sharp, it's yours. If it pools and stays pooled, skip it.

Q Can I wear feminine pieces? Everything sharp feels cold.

A You can — but choose feminine pieces with structure. A column dress in deep oxblood reads feminine without softening your line. A sharp blazer over a silk shell reads feminine without ruffles. Color, fabric quality, and refined detail are where femininity lives for your frame — not in puff sleeves, peplum, or wrap details.

Q I want to look softer sometimes — how?

A Soften with color and fabric, not silhouette. Switch true black for ink navy or oxblood. Switch poplin for mid-weight crepe. Add cashmere over wool. But keep the sharp silhouette — switching to drapey or curve-emphasizing pieces doesn't make you look softer, it makes you look like you're wearing the wrong clothes.

Q I gain weight easily — how should I dress when I do?

A The same way, just with very mild ease. Don't switch to tight fitted clothing or to drapey oversized — both make things worse for Hard Straight bodies. Sharp blazers, tailored trousers, column dresses in firm fabrics still work — and the sharp line + slight ease forgives where tight or oversized wouldn't. Stay in your colors, just go slightly darker (true black, charcoal) for a slimming illusion.

Q Minimalism feels boring — can I look more interesting?

A Minimalism for your frame isn't boring — it's the entire point. The 'interest' for your body comes from fabric quality, precise tailoring, and unexpected proportion — a long architectural coat over a short column dress, a sharp blazer in oxblood instead of black, a single bold accessory. Quiet luxury done at its sharpest is essentially Hard Straight styling. Trust the line — adding more detail usually subtracts impact.

FINAL WORDS

Your style is already perfect.

This report is a guide, not a rulebook. Start with the recommended pieces, get comfortable, then make it your own. Two people with the same body type can dress completely differently — and both can look amazing.

The one question that matters: "Does this piece celebrate my sharp vertical line and architectural structure?" Ask yourself this in front of any mirror, and you'll never feel lost in a fitting room again.

Your closet self-audit

Open your closet and check off the 12 items below. The number you check tells you where you are.

— — Tops (4)

- ☐ I have at least 2 crisp white shirts (poplin)
- ☐ I have a slim turtleneck (black, charcoal, or navy)
- ☐ I have a heavyweight crisp tee
- ☐ I have a sharp silk shell (heavy silk)

— — Bottoms & dresses (4)

- ☐ I have a tailored straight trouser (wool gabardine)
- ☐ I have a column dress (crepe or wool blend)
- ☐ I have a rigid straight-leg jean
- ☐ I have a slim midi skirt (pencil cut)

— — Outerwear & accessories (4)

- ☐ I have a sharp single-breasted blazer
- ☐ I have a long sharp wool coat or sharp leather jacket
- ☐ I have a pointed pump or sharp loafer
- ☐ I have a structured top-handle or minimal tote

WHAT YOUR SCORE MEANS

10–12 checked · You're a closet master. Just refine your styling ✨

6–9 checked · Strong foundation. Add 1–2 missing pieces at a time.

3–5 checked · Just getting started. Follow the priority guide on P. 17.

0–2 checked · A fresh-start opportunity. Go slow — don't buy everything at once.

FOR YOU

Style is a journey, not a destination.

You start with a guide,
and over time, you find your own way.

We hope this report makes your first step a little easier.

Questions? awaysbiz@gmail.com

© 2026 AWAYS · PREMIUM STYLE REPORT
HARD STRAIGHT · GENERATED FOR YOU