CHAPTER ONE

Understanding your body

Dressing well starts with knowing your body — not what's on trend.

Before asking what suits you, you need to understand how your frame is actually shaped. This chapter unpacks the three core characteristics of the Hard Wave body type in detail.

CHAPTER 01 · BODY UNDERSTANDING

You are Hard Wave

Hard Wave is the body type where femininity meets architecture. You have the curves of a Wave — a clearly defined waist, a hip-to-waist contrast — but your frame underneath is firm and structured rather than soft. The result is a silhouette that reads sharp and confident, not airy. Your job isn't to soften yourself; it's to honor that structure.

"Curves don't always need to be softened. When structure meets the curve, the silhouette becomes unforgettable."

— YOUR STYLE DIAGNOSIS

01 The 3 signatures of your body type

01 A defined waistline with firm framing

Like all Wave types, your waist is your visual anchor. But unlike Soft Wave, your waist is supported by firmer muscle and bone underneath — it holds shape rather than yielding. This is why structured pieces with waist definition (tailored wrap dresses, sharp belts, fitted blazers) read powerful on you instead of stiff.

02 Squared, defined shoulders

Your shoulders sit more squarely and assertively than a Soft Wave's gentle slope. Soft puff sleeves and rounded collars can read mismatched with your upper-body line. Tailored shoulders, structured blazers, and clean V-necks bring out the architecture your frame is already showing.

03 Toned, defined lower body

You have hip-to-waist curve — but the volume reads firm and shaped, not soft. Flowy A-lines that work for Soft Wave can swallow your lower-body definition. Pencil cuts, structured flares, and tailored trousers honor the line your body already has.

Your diagnostic score

DIRECTION

Wave

TEXTURE

Hard

Your result is the synthesis of 15 questions analyzed together. Each answer carries a weighted score across body direction (Straight / Wave / Natural) and texture (Hard / Soft). Your final type is the highest-scoring match.

HARD WAVE IN NUMBERS

Hard Wave is one of the less common body types — which means most generic styling advice misses your mark. Soft Wave advice softens you too much; Hard Straight advice hides your curves. Your styling sweet spot is its own thing, and it's worth getting right.

02 Why this result

Your responses showed strong Wave direction for three reasons. First, you reported a clear waist-to-hip difference. Second, belts at the waist consistently improve your fit. Third, your curves register clearly even in everyday clothing. These three signals are the clearest indicators of a Wave body type.

Your Hard texture result came from answers about wrist firmness, muscle tone, and visible bone structure (collarbone, shoulder edge) — your body reads as frame first, flesh second. Combined with the Wave direction, this gives you the Hard Wave classification.

03 How you differ from other types

Aspect	Hard Wave (you)	Soft Wave	Hard Straight
Core feature	Curves + firm structure	Curves + soft volume	Linear + firm structure
Best fits	Fitted + structured	A-line, wrap silhouettes	Sharp tailoring, clean lines
What to avoid	Drapey, fluid fabrics	Boxy fits, straight H-line	Curve-emphasizing cuts
Style keyword	Sharp	Feminine	Polished

Hard Wave is often called the most architecturally striking body type. The key isn't to soften the structure — it's to let it lead, with curves as the supporting feature. The next chapter dives into the exact silhouettes and fits that let your sharpness do the work.

02

CHAPTER TWO

The golden ratio of fit

Dressing well, in the end, is about understanding fit. The same garment can read completely differently depending on how it sits on you. This chapter shows you which silhouettes lock into a Hard Wave frame — and which ones you should walk past in the store.

CHAPTER 02 · SILHOUETTE & FIT

The secret to a flattering silhouette

01 Your golden formula

"Define the waist + structure the line."

— YOUR FIT FORMULA

The single most flattering formula for Hard Wave is fitted top + structured bottom + a sharply defined waistline. The defined waist holds the hourglass; the structured bottom keeps the line clean instead of letting it drift soft. This is the silhouette behind every iconic power suit and tailored dress — and it works because it agrees with what your body is already doing.

YES

Tailored shirt + pencil skirt — fitted, sharp, with a clear belt

Structured wrap dress with a firm fabric — not flowy

WHY THIS WORKS

When the bottom holds its shape from a defined waist, your hip line reads as part of the structure instead of floating. The eye registers proportion and authority at once. This is why structured wrap dresses look commanding on Hard Wave bodies in a way that flowy ones never quite do.

02 Fits that flatter you

These silhouettes work with your frame, not against it. When in doubt at the store, default to one of these.

STRUCTURED WRAP DRESS

Tied waist + firm fabric = sharp hourglass

PENCIL SKIRT

Holds the lower line cleanly

TAILORED BLAZER WITH WAIST

Defined shoulder + nipped waist = your power piece

SHEATH DRESS

Clean line, defined waist, no flow

03 Fits to avoid

These fits flatten or fight your structure. Most styling regrets come from one of these.

SOFT FLOWY MAXI

Drapes erase your shape — looks shapeless

LOOSE A-LINE TENT

Hides your defined lower line

SOFT PUFF-SLEEVE BLOUSE

Fights your squared shoulders

DROP-WAIST ANYTHING

Lowers your strongest line — kills proportion

03

CHAPTER THREE

Fabrics & colors made for you

The same design in a different fabric can fit completely differently. Hard Wave bodies look best in structured, firm, shape-holding fabrics. Drapey, fluid fabrics fight your sharp frame and make pieces look like they're slipping rather than sitting.

CHAPTER 03 · FABRIC & COLOR

Hard Wave looks most at home in fabrics that hold their shape and edge. Soft silks and clingy jerseys melt where your body wants firmness. Structured fabrics meet you halfway.

WOOL GABARDINE

Holds a sharp line. The classic suiting fabric for a reason.

STRUCTURED COTTON

Crisp poplin and twill — they sit, they don't drape.

CREPE (FIRM)

Has body, doesn't cling. Ideal for tailored dresses.

MID-WEIGHT DENIM

Rigid enough to hold the line of a fitted jean or skirt.

PONTE KNIT

Stretch with structure — perfect for sheaths and pencil skirts.

WOOL BLEND SUITING

Look for blends with a firm hand, not soft drape.

FABRICS TO SKIP

Soft silk charmeuse, fluid rayon, and slinky jersey tend to collapse against your frame instead of meeting it. They look beautiful on a Soft Wave and underwhelming on you. If a fabric pours through your hand like water, it'll do the same on your body.

Your color palette

Sharp, saturated tones complement your structure. Your natural palette skews toward clear and bold rather than muted or romantic.

True Black

#1A1714

Crimson

#9B2335

Ink Navy

#1F2D4A

Pure White

#F8F6F1

Emerald

#1F5F4A

Cognac

#8C5A3C

02 How to use these colors

Build outfits around black, ink navy, and pure white as your everyday base. They match your sharpness and read commanding rather than soft.

Use crimson and emerald for high-impact moments — they bring out the architectural quality of your frame and pair beautifully with your base colors.

Soft, washed-out pastels like dusty rose and cream can fight your sharper features. If you love them, use them as accents — never head-to-toe. A black blazer + crimson silk shirt will look more like 'you' than cream + dusty rose.

COLORS THAT FIGHT YOUR SHARPNESS

Muted pastels, dusty earth tones, and very low-contrast color combinations can wash out your defined features. If you love pastels, pair them with sharp black or navy — never with each other.

04

CHAPTER FOUR

5 outfit formulas

Theory is one thing — knowing what to wear on a Tuesday morning is another. Five complete formulas, ready to wear, designed specifically for Hard Wave bodies. Steal them, mix them, build from them.

CHAPTER 04 · OUTFIT FORMULAS

5 outfit formulas

MEETINGS · FORMAL MOMENTS

FORMULA 01

The power meeting look

"When you need to walk in and own the room"

Tailored blazer + pencil skirt + pointed pump

Why this works: A tailored blazer with a defined waist creates a sharp hourglass — no styling effort needed. A knee-length pencil skirt holds the lower line clean. A pointed pump (about 3 inches) lengthens and sharpens the leg line. This is the formula every iconic power dresser has used.

PRO TIP

The blazer should nip in at the waist, not just hang straight. If yours doesn't, take it to a tailor — it's the single most worthwhile alteration you'll ever pay for.

OFFICE · LUNCH DATES

FORMULA 02

Sharp workday look

"Polished and decisive for everyday office days"

Tailored shirt + high-waist trouser + loafer

Why this works: A crisp tailored shirt tucked into a high-waist trouser is the daily uniform that always works. The shirt's structure holds your shoulder line; the high waist anchors the hourglass. A pointed loafer keeps it sharp without the heel commitment.

PRO TIP

Tuck in fully and add a slim belt — the visible waist is non-negotiable. Roll your sleeves once at the cuff to expose the wrist (your slimmest point) and add a touch of intentionality.

BUSINESS CASUAL

FORMULA 03

Modern business casual

"For client meetings on a regular Wednesday"

Sheath dress + structured blazer + heel

Why this works: A sheath dress is your secret weapon — clean line, defined waist, no fuss. Layer a structured blazer on top and the look reads commanding without trying too hard. The whole silhouette is one continuous architectural line.

 PRO TIP

Choose a sheath in a firm fabric like ponte or wool blend, never soft jersey. The dress should feel like it stands on its own when you take it off the hanger.

PRESENTATIONS · BIG MOMENTS

FORMULA 04

The unforgettable presence

"When you need to be remembered in the room"

Structured wrap dress + statement belt + pointed pump

Why this works: A wrap dress in firm crepe or wool — never silk — gives you the sharp hourglass with a touch of movement. A statement belt at the waist doubles down on the strongest part of your silhouette. This is the look people remember days later.

 PRO TIP

Choose a wrap dress that ties firmly and doesn't gape. If it has a tendency to slip open, sew a small snap inside — a five-minute fix that saves the whole outfit.

FRIDAY · CASUAL DAY

FORMULA 05

Friday off-duty look*"Relaxed but still feeling like yourself"Fitted tee + high-waist straight jean + ankle boot

Why this works: A fitted tee tucked into high-waist rigid denim is your casual signature. The structured denim holds the line that flowy jeans would lose. Pointed ankle boots finish the silhouette with a sharp note instead of a soft one.

 PRO TIP

Choose denim with very little stretch — the more rigid, the more it works for you. Save the soft, broken-in jeans for weekend errands; for everything else, you want denim that holds its shape.

06 Accessories that workNECKLACE

Sharp pendant or chain

BAG

Structured top-handle bag

SHOES

Pointed pump

— Necklaces

Defined, slightly architectural pieces land best on you. A pendant with clear geometry, a Y-chain, or a single-statement choker works with your sharper features. Tiny delicate florals and cluttered layered chains can read mismatched. If you wear a pendant, let it be the focal point.

— Bags

Structured bags with clean lines and defined corners harmonize with your frame. Top-handle bags, structured totes, and box clutches all work. Soft slouchy hobos can look apologetic next to your line; very small charm bags can read out of scale. Aim for a bag with architecture — the same cleanness you bring.

— Shoes

A pointed-toe pump (2.5–3.5 inches) is your sweet spot — sharp without being uncomfortable. Pointed loafers, ankle boots with a clean line, and slingbacks all work beautifully. Avoid round-toe ballet flats and very soft-edged sneakers; they'll soften a line your body already wants sharp. Stilettos and pointed-toe Mary Janes are also strong choices.

05

CHAPTER FIVE

Essential shopping list

12 pieces that should anchor your wardrobe — plus where to actually buy them. You don't need to replace everything. Use this as a checklist against your current closet and fill the gaps over time, not in one weekend.

CHAPTER 05 · SHOPPING CHECKLIST

Tops & bottoms

These four tops do most of the heavy lifting for any outfit. Get them right and most of your wardrobe falls into place.

01 Tops

ITEM	RECOMMENDED FIT & DETAIL	WHERE TO SHOP
Tailored shirt Crisp poplin, fitted through body	Structured cotton / darts at bust and waist / clean collar	Theory COS Banana Republic
Fitted knit (crew or V) Body-skimming, holds shape	Merino or wool blend / structured rib / clean neckline	Theory Everlane Uniqlo
Structured silk shirt Heavier silk, not flowy	Silk twill or charmeuse with weight / button-down / clean lines	Equipment Frame Theory
Fitted tee Compact cotton, holds line	Heavyweight cotton / fitted through bust and waist / clean crew	Everlane Theory Cuyana

02 Bottoms

ITEM	RECOMMENDED FIT & DETAIL	WHERE TO SHOP
High-waist trouser Tailored, sharp line	Wool gabardine or wool blend / waist sits at navel / straight or slim	Theory COS Banana Republic
Pencil skirt Knee length, structured	Wool blend or ponte / sits at waist / has minimal stretch	Theory J.Crew Banana Republic
High-waist straight jean Rigid denim, not soft	Defined waist / falls straight from hip / minimal stretch	Levi's AGOLDE Frame
Sheath dress For meetings & presentations	Knee length / ponte or crepe / defined waist	Theory Banana Republic Reiss

Outerwear & dresses

Outerwear is what you're seen in for half the year. These four pieces do the work for any season.

ITEM	RECOMMENDED FIT & DETAIL	WHERE TO SHOP
Tailored blazer Defined shoulder, nipped waist	Wool blend / structured shoulder / 1-2 button / waist seams	Theory Reiss Banana Republic
Structured trench coat Crisp, with belt	Knee or below-knee / structured cotton or gabardine / cinch the belt	Burberry Banana Republic Theory
Wrap dress (firm fabric) Versatile across occasions	Crepe or wool blend / true wrap / V-neck / mid-knee	Diane von Furstenberg Reiss Reformation
Wool peacoat Structured, defined waist	Heavy wool / double-breasted / nipped waist / clean shoulder	Max Mara J.Crew Uniqlo

HOW TO PRIORITIZE WHEN BUDGET IS LIMITED

If you're starting from scratch, build in this order: (1) tailored blazer, (2) high-waist trouser, (3) sheath dress. These three pieces alone will get you through 80% of your week. Add tailored shirt and pencil skirt next. Save trench and wrap dress for last — they're amazing but more situational. Don't buy everything at once; let your wardrobe build over a season or two.

06

CHAPTER SIX

Year-round & common questions

Stay consistent through every season, and clear up the most common Hard Wave styling myths in one place. After this chapter, you won't second-guess yourself in front of the mirror anymore.

CHAPTER 06 · SEASONS & FAQ

Year-round style guide

SPRING

KEY ITEMS

Crisp white shirt, structured trench, fitted knit

STYLE TIP

Layer a fitted knit under an open trench — the structure holds the line through changing weather. Cropped tailored trousers showing the ankle keep the look airy without softening the silhouette.

COLORS

Crimson, ink navy, pure white, emerald

SUMMER

KEY ITEMS

Sheath dress, fitted tee, tailored shorts

STYLE TIP

Lean into structured cotton and ponte. Avoid soft maxi dresses and slinky slip dresses — even on hot days, they collapse against your frame. A knee-length sheath in cotton blend is your hot-day power piece.

COLORS

Pure white, ink navy, crimson, cognac

AUTUMN

KEY ITEMS

Tailored blazer, fitted knit, pencil skirt

STYLE TIP

Layer a fitted knit under the tailored blazer with a pencil skirt — the most universally flattering autumn formula for your body. Pointed knee-high boots in firm leather complete it.

COLORS

Crimson, ink navy, cognac, emerald

WINTER

KEY ITEMS

Wool peacoat, cashmere knit, ankle boots

STYLE TIP

Always belt or button your winter coat to keep your waistline visible. Soft puffers that erase your shape are the #1 winter styling regret for Hard Wave bodies. Choose a structured wool coat with clean lines.

COLORS

True black, ink navy, crimson, pure white

TRANSITIONING BETWEEN SEASONS

Between-season transitions are all about layering with structure. Use the 3-layer rule: fitted base + structured middle + tailored outer. A fitted tee + tailored blazer + trench is sharper and more practical than a single bulky piece.

Clearing up common myths

Q Should I avoid all soft fabrics? What about silk?

A Not all soft — but be selective. Heavy silk twill and silk crepe with weight work for you; flowy silk charmeuse and fluid jersey don't. The test: does the fabric hold its shape when you bunch it in your hand? If it springs back, it's yours. If it pools and stays pooled, skip it.

Q Can I wear A-line skirts? They feel so feminine.

A You can, but with a sharp twist. A soft, flowy A-line will swallow your defined lower body. A structured A-line in firm fabric (wool blend, ponte) with a clear waist works beautifully. The shape can be A-line; the fabric should never be drapey.

Q Are puff sleeves and ruffles off-limits?

A Mostly, yes — but not always. Soft, billowy puff sleeves fight your squared shoulders. If you love the trend, find a small, structured puff in a firm fabric — not a romantic flowy one. Same with ruffles: tiny tailored ruffles work; cascading romantic ones don't.

Q I want to look softer sometimes — how?

A Soften with color and accessories, not silhouette. Switch crimson and black for cognac and ink navy on softer days. Add a delicate pendant instead of a statement piece. But keep the structured silhouette — switching to flowy fabrics doesn't make you look softer, it makes you look like you're wearing the wrong clothes.

Q I gain weight easily — how should I dress when I do?

A The same way, just with more give. Don't switch to flowy when you gain — that always makes things worse for Hard Wave bodies. Structured wrap dresses, ponte sheaths, tailored blazers with stretch still work. Stay in your colors, just go slightly darker (true black, ink navy) for a slimming illusion.

Q Everyone says structured looks 'too corporate' — is that true for me?

A Structure is your power, not your prison. The trick is mixing structured pieces with one casual element — tailored blazer + jeans, sheath dress + ankle boots, pencil skirt + fitted tee. You'll read sharp and modern, never stiff. The 'too corporate' problem comes from head-to-toe matching suits, not from structure itself.

FINAL WORDS

Your style is already perfect.

This report is a guide, not a rulebook. Start with the recommended pieces, get comfortable, then make it your own. Two people with the same body type can dress completely differently — and both can look amazing.

The one question that matters: "Does this piece celebrate my defined waist and sharp structure?" Ask yourself this in front of any mirror, and you'll never feel lost in a fitting room again.

Your closet self-audit

Open your closet and check off the 12 items below. The number you check tells you where you are.
